Fund Manager Comment

Q1, 25 was a positive quarter for Fixed Income, with treasury yields being driven lower due to concerns about growth amid tariff fears. However, overall sentiment shifted to a weaker state, marked by renewed inflationary fears and general recessionary worries. As of the end of March, the number of rate cuts expected for the year had also increased to three, up from a single cut at the beginning of the year.

During Q1, the US 10-year rate moved from 4.57% to 4.20% by the quarter's end while reaching a high of 4.79% in mid-January. Movement in rates primarily occurred due to concerns about growth. With this level of uncertainty, Fed officials decided to hold the Fed rates in this quarter. The current prediction of a stagflation situation would make the lives of Fed officials difficult, as they need to consider avoiding a recession while keeping inflation low. Should the US trade policies continue to battle with the rest of the world, we can be assured of a volatile market as we advance.

During the month, Brent ended higher at c. USD 74.74 from c. USD 73.18 despite predictions of reduced global demand and the expected increase in supply. The regional IG and HY space remain favorable to its international counterparts and will continue to attract flows from yield-seeking investors.

QNB MENA Debt Fund, after being launched in 2017, has paid 15 coupons. We remain focused on taking advantage of the opportunistic trades apparent in the market. The fund manager has gradually increased the fund's duration to position the fund to an eventual steeper yield curve. Assets of the Fund are satisfactorily deployed as per the investment guidelines and also in line with the selected benchmark, which the fund intends to outperform in the longer run
